PROJECT REPORT 4

Draft a Professional Email & Etiquette Guide

Part A: Write two Professional Emails:-

In this activity, I wrote two professional emails:

1. Email to a Professor requesting an extension on an assignment submission deadline.
2. Email to an Internship Coordinator expressing interest in a summer internship opportunity.

While writing these emails, I followed the correct professional email structure, including:

- A clear subject line
- A professional greeting
- A well-structured body
- A polite and proper sign-off

This task helped me understand the importance of writing formal emails in a respectful, clear, and professional manner. It also improved my ability to communicate effectively in academic and career-related situations.

Part B: Create a Social Media Do's and Don'ts checklist:-

In this activity, I created a simple checklist containing 5 Do’s and 5 Don’ts for responsible social media use as a college student.

The checklist included important practices such as:

- Thinking before posting
- Protecting privacy
- Verifying information before sharing
- Avoiding cyberbullying
- Not oversharing personal details

This task helped me understand how social media should be used carefully and responsibly, especially by students who are building their academic and professional image online.

Learning Outcomes

Through this project, I learned:

- How to write professional emails properly
- The correct format and etiquette of formal email communication
- The importance of respectful and clear digital communication
- How to use social media responsibly and safely
- How digital behaviour can affect personal and professional reputation

Digital Communication Scenario

A common example of poor digital communication is when a student sends an incomplete or rude email to a professor, such as writing only “Send my marks” without a greeting, explanation, or proper tone. This can create a negative impression and may even lead to misunderstanding or delayed response. In a professional or academic setting, unclear or impolite communication can damage relationships and reduce opportunities. What could have been done differently is that the student should have written a polite and complete email with a proper subject line, respectful greeting, clear explanation of the issue, and a professional closing. Good digital communication is important because it reflects a person’s attitude, seriousness, and professionalism. Using proper email etiquette and thoughtful language can prevent confusion and help build positive communication.
